When should you call?

When you or your loved one needs assistance with……
• decision-making across care settings
• planning, organizing tasks, making appointments
• taking medications
• understanding and/or complying with physician orders
• driving or traveling independently
• bathing, dressing, grooming
• household routine

When you see yourself or your loved one ……
• forgetful, anxious, confused, or overwhelmed
• depressed, uncharacteristically angry
• having problems sleeping or eating
• showing a decreased interest in life

When you need to know someone is helping you or your loved one to……
• receive all available benefits (i.e. Medicare, Medicaid, VA, etc)
• transition across care settings (home, hospital, physicians’ offices, nursing facility)
• assist in, or plan for, safety in event of an emergency or disaster - ensure the household routine is being maintained
• ensure bills are accurate and paid in a timely manner, inaccuracies are disputed and corrected
• understand options for living in an assisted living facility or a nursing facility

When you need peace of mind…… call the professionals with over forty years of experience as the primary resource for older adults, persons with disabilities, and their caregivers. We can help you and your loved one define lifestyle goals, quantify needs, recommend options, and develop and implement a customized plan of action across care settings to maintain independence in the desired setting.
